First Avenue Networks and RCN Corporation Partner to Tap Metropolitan Wireless Fiber Extension Market

Business Relationship To Enhance Respective Broadband Wireless/Cable Service Offerings

MCLEAN, Va. and HERNDON, Va., November 22, 2005 – RCN Corporation (NASDAQ: RCNI), a leading provider of triple play cable television, high-speed Internet and phone services, and First Avenue Networks (NASDAQ: FRNS), a fixed wireless broadband services provider, today announced that the two companies have entered into an agreement to form a strategic partnership to capitalize on the metropolitan wireless fiber extension market opportunity.

Subject to completion of a successful trial and the execution of definitive agreements, First Avenue will equip RCN Business Solutions, the wholly owned but separately managed division of RCN Corporation that provides bulk video, high-capacity broadband and voice services to business customers, wireless extensions of their fiber network at up to 155 Mbps. In return, RCN will provide First Avenue the fiber links necessary to deliver carrier-grade backhaul service to its fixed line and mobile carrier customers.

“Even in the largest metro areas in the U.S., fiber-optic network operators are not able to provide sufficient coverage to businesses and office parks, leaving holes in the network,” said Emmy Johnson, principal analyst at SkyLight Research. “The ability to extend fiber networks by utilizing mid- to high-capacity wireless links at speeds equal to or greater than broadband is an extremely savvy and economical approach to reaching more customers, while having the added benefit of providing the shortest time to market.”

First Avenue’s wireless extensions will enable RCN to expand its facilities-based fiber optic broadband and hosting services to more of its target market -- large business customers. Wireless broadband access also provides physically diverse connectivity in the markets RCN serves.

RCN executive vice president and CTO Timothy Dunne said of the relationship, "RCN Business Solutions has unparalleled fiber optic density, metropolitan business access, and advanced network technology with an enhanced product line delivered over a fast and powerful platform suited for telecommunications carriers and enterprise broadband applications. As such, we are enthusiastic about cost-effectively expanding our footprint with First Avenue Networks' fiber extension solution to grow our subscriber base."

Dunne added, "We appreciate the opportunity to provide First Avenue Networks with additional fiber optic broadband capacity to augment its wireless backhaul network. This relationship will be mutually beneficial. "

"First Avenue's focus is on helping carriers easily and economically expand constrained networks and reach unserved areas," said Michael Gallagher, president and CEO of First Avenue Networks. "Our partnership with RCN shows the breadth of opportunity our spectrum offers carriers of all types."

Commenting on the strategic nature of the partnership Mr. Gallagher continued, "The fact that RCN's fiber presence is in many of our target markets, along with RCN Business Solutions' focus on extending their network connectivity to quickly and cost effectively reach new customers, makes for an ideal partnership where everybody wins - especially the end customers. It exemplifies the value of our fiber extension solution - which represents the foundation of the second phase of our business plan. Providing wireless extensions to RCN's fiber-optic networks will leverage and complement our existing and planned mobile backhaul activities."

RCN, one of the largest U.S. competitive Multi-Service Operators (MSO), and First Avenue are initiating the business relationship with a trial, which is currently underway in the New York City metropolitan market. The companies will have the opportunity to expand the relationship into RCN's other markets including Philadelphia/Lehigh Valley; Washington, DC; Boston and Chicago.
